QUESTIONS
ANSWERS*WHAT IS COACHING AND ADVISING?

Coaching is focused on very specific objectives within a set period of time. Coaching is mainly concerned with performance and the development of certain skills. In a very general sense, what distinguishes coaching from advising is that coaching is a co-creative process to determine what success looks like for each individual and takes a proactive approach to both short and long-term success.

IS IT POSSIBLE TO PREDICT SITUATIONS LIKE CORONA?

Of course, it is business continuity solution and risk, crisis and disaster recovery management.

IS IT POSSIBLE TO ADVISE ME WHEN MY BUSINESS STOPS DOING WELL?

Yes, it is one of the types of crisis management. This can be prevented by simulations, business continuity management, and other procedures and tools.

WHAT IS NOT PROVIDED?

No information and other unfair practices and activities that were the subject of the session is provided.

WHAT ARE SIMULATIONS?

Contemporary sciences use a wide and diverse range of simulations, including in the various areas and most other scientific fields. A simulation is a model that describes or creates a system process. Simulations are our best cognitive representation of complex reality, that is, our deepest conception of what reality is. Simulations cannot be considered secondary nor weak instruments to approach to the reality analysis.

WHEN DO I NEED THE SIMULATIONS FOR MY BUSINESS?

Simulation modeling solves real-world problems safely and efficiently. It provides an important method of analysis which is easily verified, communicated, and understood. Across industries and disciplines, simulation modeling provides valuable solutions by giving clear insights into complex systems. Simulation enables experimentation. The uses of simulation in business are varied and it is often utilized when conducting experiments on a real system is impossible or impractical, often because of cost or time. The ability to analyze the model as it runs sets simulation modeling apart from other methods, such as those using Excel or linear programming.
